

Nathán Goldberg Crenier is a lifelong soccer fan and player and an accomplished soccer executive who is passionate about using the power of soccer to make the world a better place. He currently serves as the elected Vice President of the US Soccer Federation and holds a research fellowship appointment at the Harvard Weatherhead Center as part of the Global Sports Initiative, developing evidence-based approaches to enhance player wellbeing in professional women's soccer.

Nathán earned a joint degree in Philosophy and Statistics at Harvard, where he captained the Division I varsity men's soccer team. Most recently, he was Assistant General Manager and Chief Soccer Officer at Gotham FC, where within one year he transformed the worst team in the league into National Women's Soccer League champions, earning a place on Sports Business Journal's New Voices Under 30 list.
